Dear Food Vendor,

The Skagit River Salmon Festival participates in the Skagit County Zero-Waste Events program. Events generate a tremendous amount of waste, much of which can be recycled and composted. As a certified Zero-Waste Event, we will be composting food scraps, recycling cans and bottles, and collecting used cooking oil for biodiesel.

A Zero-Waste Event is more than just an event with recycling bins. As a participant, our event earns the right to use Skagit County's ZWE certification logo to promote our mission toward 'zero-waste' and attract greater attendance! We expect to save on disposal costs for garbage. Being a Zero-Waste Event also benefits the Skagit River Salmon Festival the following ways:

- Makes our event more attractive to sponsors and attendees
- Provides a clean, positive environment for attendees
- Supports long-lasting community change toward recycling, composting, and waste reduction

As a vendor at a Zero-Waste Event, we ask you to act responsibly by adhering to the following guidelines:

1. Constrain your use of packaging and service ware for the food items you provide, consistent with the attached list. Simplification of your waste stream is essential for making recycling and composting easy for event attendees.
2. Recycle all recyclable materials that you use in your booth, including all clean and dry containers.
3. Compost acceptable compostable materials that you produce in your booth. Items acceptable for composting include food waste, wooden food service products, uncoated paper packaging and paper towels.

4. The Zero Waste Events program provides specialized bags and bins for the collection of compostables, as well as bags and bins for recyclables and garbage.

If you have questions regarding accepted or unaccepted items, packaging, or questions about composting, contact Skagit County Recycling Coordinator Callie Martin at (360) 416-1575 or email calliem@co.skagit.wa.us

We are looking forward to a great event this year and reducing our environmental impact. Your participation is a key to helping us reaching our waste reduction goals. Thank you for your participation!
